About Tom Hebrank, CFP, CLTC

Academically, Tom Hebrank graduated from Emory University, in Atlanta, GA, with a degree in Economics and then obtained an MBA from the University of Wisconsin at Madison with a specialization in Finance, Investments, and Banking.

Tom obtained his Certified Financial Planner (CFP) designation in 1995 and was among the first one hundred planners in the United States to be awarded the Certification as a Long Term Care Specialist (CLTC) in 1999. This CLTC certification program was administered by the National Academy of Elder Law Attorneys (NAELA).

Tom is now recognized by Financial Planners, Attorneys and Accountants as a leading Long Term Care planning expert and for his expertise with Medicare-related health products. He is often quoted in national magazines and is a frequent speaker to these professional groups.
